STOP PUSHING!

Ike Tells Reds 'Talk Or Fight'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Thursday night told Communist China to stop pushing and negotiate or be prepared to fight.

Immediate congressional reaction to his White House address was strongly favorable. Nationalist China, which the United States has sworn to defend, was certain to applaud.

But it remained to be seen whether China and Russia—accused by Eisenhower of "working hand in hand"—would accept his warning.

EISENHOWER

Peiping Thursday unleashed the heaviest artillery barrage yet on the blockaded offshore island of Quemoy. Soviet Premier Khrushchev told a rally of 100,000 cheering Russians at Stalingrad Thursday night that any attack on Red China would be considered an attack on Russia.

Eisenhower interrupted his vacation to make the speech, perhaps the strongest of his career. He arranged to fly back early today to Newport, R.I.

In his radio-TV address, beamed in 40 languages by the Voice of America, Eisenhower deplored the bombardment of Quemoy, which already has killed or wounded 1,000 persons—mostly civilians.

But the issue, he said, is not the defence of the tiny islands. He pledged: "No American boy will ever be asked by me to fight just for Quemoy."

The issue, he said, is: "Shall we take the position that, submitting to threat, it is better to surrender pieces of free territory in the hope that this will satisfy the appetite of the aggressor and we shall have peace?"

Contending the answer is no, the president said the free world must fight if necessary for that principle.

Britain Supports Ike China View

LONDON (Reuters)—A foreign office spokesman today supported President Eisenhower's view that no use of force should be made to alter the status of the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Mrs. Smith Named To Tory Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Dorothy Dean Smith of Kelowna has been elected president of the B.C. Women's Progressive Conservative Association.

The women's association meeting Thursday night also chose the following six vice-presidents: Mrs. R. Campbell, Victoria; Mrs. A. H. Bayne, Vancouver; Mrs. Norman Drysdale, Vancouver; Mrs. H. A. Phelps, Oliver; Mrs. Ralph Stromberg, Prince George and Mrs. C. R. Woolridge, Burnaby.

Secretary of the association is Mrs. W. T. Buss of Kelowna and Mrs. Lorna McKay of Vancouver was elected treasurer for a second term.

Pierre Berton Joins Daily Star

TORONTO (CP)—The Star announced today that Pierre Berton, 38, has joined its staff as associate editor and will write a daily column.

His resignation from Maclean's Magazine, of which he had been managing editor for the last six years, was announced last month. It took effect at the beginning of this week.

Mr. Berton, a native of Whitehorse, Y.T., began newspaper work with the old Vancouver News-Herald. He has appeared on radio and television as a reporter, commentator and panelist and has written four books of non-fiction.

LeMay Breaks Jet Plane Speed Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Curtis E. LeMay flew a KC-135 jet tanker to a Tokyo-Washington speed record today.

The vice-chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force flew the 7,100 miles in 12 hours and 28 minutes. This was about one hour and seven minutes faster than a previous record set last April by Brig. Gen. William Eubank, a Strategic Air Command officer.

QUEMOY UNDER SIEGE

Here are typical scenes of the defensive setup on the Chinese Nationalist island of Quemoy, currently under heavy siege by Chinese Reds from the mainland. Inset is a Nationalist soldier keeping an eye on the Communist mainland, only a few miles from Quemoy. Top sentry near barbed wire. Lower is one of the strong defense positions.

Railways Pledge Early Contract Settlements

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's two big railways have openly proposed a straight deal with the federal government, offering to settle all their contract disputes with some 160,000 railway workers if the railways get a proposed 19-per-cent boost in freight rates.

The railways—facing a strike vote among their 130,000 non-operating employees—will apply to the board of transport commissioners next week for the general increase in freight rates.

They said they will seek an immediate boost and try to get a fast ruling from the Ottawa board. They also want an extra 25 cents a ton on coal and coke freight charges.

67 DOUK PUPILS AWAIT DECISION

NEW DENVER (CP) — A shadow of uncertainty hangs over 67 Doukhobor children of the Sons of Freedom sect who are back at school like thousands of other young Canadians.

Until their parents agree on a federal-provincial offer of financial aid in relocating the sect in Siberia, and the Russian government approves the resettlement, the children will not know if they can finish another school term in this centre 60 miles north of the Freedom village of Krestova.

But it seems certain that so long as the Freedomites remain in British Columbia and refuse to send their children to state schools or provide them with a normal education, the youngsters will be compelled to attend classes.

BINGO STILL TOP KELOWNA ATTRACTION

Concentration and a little luck are all that's needed to play this game. Bingo games were going strong last night at the annual Rotary-sponsored Fall Fair and Home Show. Fair got under way at seven o'clock Thursday evening with many local firms displaying their merchandise.

RED VESSELS ATTACK JAPS

TOKYO (Reuters)—A small northern Japanese fishing fleet today radioed an urgent message for help after reporting it was being shelled and attacked by Soviet patrol vessels near Habomai Island, north of Japan.

Habomai Island was occupied by Soviet forces at the end of the Pacific war.

A radio report received in Tokyo this evening from Kurohito port, northern Japan, said three fishing vessels of the fleet had run aground near Suisho Island, a few miles off Habomai Island.

A coastguard spokesman in Tokyo said one of the vessels, the 39-ton Waksahio Maru, had sent a final message saying she was being boarded by Russian troops. The message asked for immediate aid.

Japanese patrol boats under the command of the northern district of the maritime safety board have left Kurohito port to investigate the attack, the spokesman said.

Green Buoys PC Comeback Hopes In B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A veteran campaigner Thursday buoyed Progressive Conservative hopes of making a comeback in British Columbia provincial politics.

Howard Green, 62-year-old federal minister of public works, told 800 delegates to the B.C. leadership convention:

"The people of British Columbia are disillusioned with the present (Social Credit) government but are not looking for a CCF government and I don't think anyone would suggest they are looking for a Liberal government."

"This is a challenge and a challenge for this convention," he said. "So do your best. Remember that governments and political parties are servants of the people."

STRESS ON UNITY

"Above all leave the convention a united team, dedicated to giving the people of British Columbia a better government."

The remarks fell in with the spirit of the two contenders for the leadership of the B.C. party at the convention.

Both contestants said in press conferences that no matter who wins the defeated will support the winner.

Delegates are going to be asked to vote Saturday for either 39-year-old Deane Finlayson, the present leader, or Desmond Kidd, 52-year-old geologist.

The latter came into active participation in the party only in the last year or so. However he has conducted an extensive campaign throughout the province.

VISIBLE PROTEST

EASTLEIGH, England (CP)—A Jolly Roger, the pirate flag, flew 150 feet high on the town hall in this Hampshire town. It was believed a protest by teen-agers against the cancellation of a rock 'n' roll contest in the hall.

Bear May Have Killed Wee Girl

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Fear that two-year-old Cindy Lou MacLaine may have been carried off by a bear was heightened as the search for the little girl entered its fourth day today.

The theory was given support when a large black bear was flushed from a cave Thursday 200 yards from the backyard of the MacLaine home at Willow River, 14 miles east of here, waned.

from which Cindy Lou disappeared Tuesday morning.

Mounties sponsored radio appeals calling for anyone with signs treated to tracking bears to join the search.

Volunteer searchers flocked to the little sawmill community Thursday to join hundreds of others who combed bushland around the area from dawn to dusk. Hopes for the child's safety waned.

Little Rock Must Wipe Out Racial Bar Court Rules

U.S. High Tribunal's Decision Unanimous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court today denied the Little Rock school board any delay in integration at Central High School.

Chief Justice Warren announced before a packed courtroom that a requested 2 1/2-year delay was refused.

Warren said the decisions were unanimous.

Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas merely nodded but said nothing when the news reached him.

There was little immediate reaction either from Negro children who are affected by the decision or from federal and city officials.

The high tribunal's ruling affirmed a decision by the U.S. circuit court of appeals at St. Louis.

The supreme court's ruling is effective immediately. It means that seven Negroes who wish to attend Central High School now are eligible for immediate admission.

The school is scheduled to open Monday.

MAY BE CLOSED UP

But Governor Orval Faubus has said repeatedly that he will close the school rather than see it operate with forced integration.

The chief justice read a two-page printed opinion which stated that the court "having fully deliberated upon the oral arguments heard on Aug. 28, as supplemented by the arguments on Sept. 11, and all the briefs on file, is unanimously of the opinion that the judgment of the court of appeals for the eighth circuit court of St. Louis of Aug. 18 must be affirmed."

Warren added for the court that in view of the imminent starting of the school year at Central High, "we deem it important to make prompt announcement of our judgment affirming the court of appeals."

GIVE DETAILS LATER

An opinion giving views of the justices and supporting today's decision will be prepared and announced in due course.

This will give the court time to set forth in detail its views on the specific issue of whether discrimination in this Mediterranean region is sufficient grounds for suspending a plan of integration once it has been put in operation.

It also will afford the court the opportunity, if it sees fit, to elaborate on its 1955 command for

Lawyers Ask Tough Code

TORONTO (CP)—Subcommittees of the Canadian Bar Association are busy preparing resolutions that if passed by the law body and given government consent could give the country's Criminal Code a few extra teeth.

With the week-long convention nearing its close, subcommittees dealing with various aspects of Canadian law are busy preparing submissions to the closing session for the approval of the association.

In meetings Thursday the law committee resolved that the code be strengthened to prevent the possibility of "perfect crimes" being committed in Canadian aircraft while flying over the high seas.

The committee on criminal justice approved resolutions regarding the Juvenile Delinquency and Appeals act.

Not all the committees were dealing with criminal matters. The maritime law sub-committee asked for immediate action by the government to implement an international agreement increasing the liability of shipowners.

Vernon Tot's Death Probed

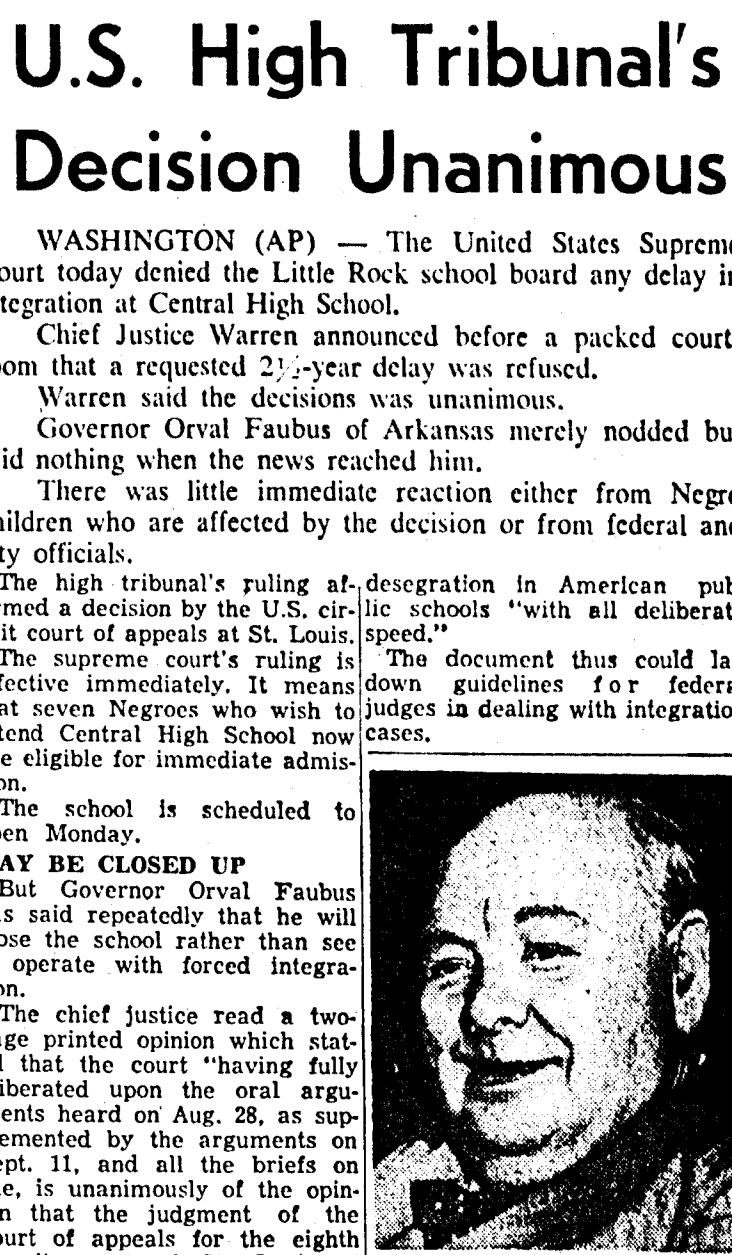

(Special To The Courier)

VERNON — Inquest into the death of two-year-old Trevor Field, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field, fatally injured in an automobile accident Thursday, was adjourned indefinitely Thursday.

A coroner's jury, under Dr. Alexander Boggie, viewed the body which was later released for burial Saturday morning. Funeral rites will be conducted from St. James' Roman Catholic Church.

Born in Vernon, he is survived by his parents and a sister.

The child was said to have been run over by a truck near his home.

SIR WINSTON

Churchills Mark Golden Wedding

CAP d'AIL, France (Reuters) — Sir Winston and Lady Churchill today celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding, an event the statesman once described as the "most joyous and fortunate" of his life.

The quiet celebration under Riviera sunshine was part of a vacation in this Mediterranean region for the former prime minister and his wife Clementine.

First item on the program was going through hundreds of congratulatory letters and telegrams.

"Bard Of The Yukon" Succumbs In France

LANCIEUX, France (CP)—Robert W. Service, whose brisk and bawdy verse still speaks for the Yukon soundbays who milled for gold more than half a century ago, died Thursday night at 64 in his villa on the coast of Brittany.

A heart attack was the apparent cause of death. Several weeks ago he became ill with what appeared to be the flu and was confined to bed. His wife was with him when he died.

France was Service's home for a major part of his life—and he has expressed the wish to be buried in the area where he died—but his works have linked him permanently with the history of the Canadian northland.

His boy, 17-year-old Billy Meraw, vanished May 6. He has never been reported again.

"We hoped publicity from the swim would bring him to contact us—if he could," Mrs. Meraw said today.

"That was our one big hope. But we heard nothing. I had tried to keep the thought from my mind. But now I'm sure that something must have happened to him."

Neither the Meraws nor Billy's friends believe the tall, wavy-haired youth simply ran away from home.

Shipping Labor Peace Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — An effort to avert a threatened strike of Great Lakes shipping is expected to be made in the next few days by federal conciliator H. Carl Goldenberg.

His move will be aimed at arranging new meetings between Great Lakes shipowners and the Seafarers' International Union, which has been told by 11,000 members to go ahead with a strike call if necessary.

Ogo Again Sighted By Ok. Mission Hostess

Ogopogo was seen on two different occasions Wednesday afternoon.

The first sighting, as reported by the Courier on Thursday, was made by Edward Coelen, and Mrs. W. D. Walker, of Okanagan Mission, at approximately 3:45 p.m.

Mrs. Walker and Mr. Coelen described Ogo as being 35 feet long with two humps and the head of a reptile. The animal was said to have a tail like a fish.

A short time later, at 4:30 the same afternoon Ogo was sighted by Mrs. S. Dalrymple, a hostess at the Eldorado Arms, who, together with Don Shore, and Mrs. Jack Shier, guests at the hotel, saw the monster from the beach. The report is a short distance south of the Walker home.

They described Ogo as having a "large black hump and a very thick body."

Mrs. Dalrymple reported that she was a scant 30 yards from shore at first and then travelled at tremendous speed away from the beach before submerging some distance from shore.

Every Canadian Club Member Can Reap A Rich Reward

The fall and winter season is about to get underway in the Okanagan and many organizations are now planning their schedules. Most important among these, perhaps, is the Canadian Club. The club is simply a number of people who meet at intervals around a dinner table to hear distinguished Canadians or visitors from other countries speak on issues of national or international importance. The purpose of these groups, according to the bylaws, "is to foster patriotism and to encourage the study of the institutions, history, literature, and resources of Canada, and to unite Canadians in such work for the welfare and progress of the Dominion as may be desirable and expedient."

Locally the Canadian Clubs are now planning for an active season. During the past two years they have experienced a great revival in interest and this year appears equally as promising. This is indicative of the change which has taken place in Canadian Club speakers in recent years. There was a time when the speakers were inclined to be academic and dull and, sometimes, obviously not too sure of their subject. However, during the past year or two it is safe to say that there have been very few speakers who had not a point and who could not put it across in an interesting manner.

The Canadian Club probably supplies the most informative program covering a wide variety of current subjects of any organization in any city, this province, or this country. The policy of the valley clubs is not to accept speakers unless they are known to be of a certain standard; fewer meetings of higher calibre.

This certainly can be said of the first speaker to visit the Kelowna club this season when next fall M. J. Coldwell, federal leader of the CCF and newspaper columnist, will be the speaker.

The Canadian Club is not a flag-waving organization. In fact, locally, it does not sing the national anthems even very well. Nor is it a small, compact group ringed with membership restrictions. Any person may be a member and, indeed, persons of all races and creeds are welcomed, although the holding of office is usually restricted to Canadian citizens. Every person living in this area may become a member of the local club. That statement stands regardless of racial and political background, creed, color, and financial condition.

Many Canadian Clubs, including the local one, do no more than arrange meetings. This may sound rather purposeless, but it is part of a deliberate plan to get a large audience that represents a good cross-section of the community, who can feel welcome just to come and listen without being embarrassed if they have no time to do some sort of service work.

The local clubs believe that one of the most practical ways to unify our country and to further the process of nationhood is for each of us to learn more about other parts of Canada, about important national issues while they are timely, and about Canada's position in the world—and all this from a variety of viewpoints. Speakers generally are encouraged to treat their subject objectively and to stimulate the thinking of their audiences that they may form their own conclusions.

Okanagan cities are highly organized, but of all organizations, the Canadian Club has the most to offer in an informative way on current domestic and world affairs. The intellectual level of Okanagan cities is high and the wonder of it is that the Canadian Clubs in the Valley have not more members than they can accommodate. Any person who reads newspapers or listens to radio news and who desires to have some understanding of the significance of what is happening in the world should be a member of a Canadian Club. He will be richly repaid. These clubs perform a most useful service to their community and should be supported on that basis but—and much more important—the individual member reaps a rich reward in understanding and knowledge and the stimulation of his thinking he will obtain. Our friendly advice is, if you are interested in knowing what is making the world tick today, join a Canadian Club.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

WHOSE MONEY IS IT, ANYWAY?

The other day I was reading to my banker son an article in a national magazine, which was highly critical of banks when it comes to securing small loans. My son was not amused and remarked, "We are loaning your money; nobody else's!" That rather set me back on my heels and also gave me an idea for a column. It is a fact that we are apt to think that a bank is loaning the bank's money, which of course, it is really doing nothing of the sort. It is loaning our money, deposited there for safe-keeping.

By the same token, whose money is it that the government spends? Certainly not the government's. It is OUR money. Yet I remember a statesman saying, "Not one five cent piece shall you have!" And I remember another saying that if the army wanted a gold-plated piano, the army would get it. But who would pay for the gold-plated piano and with whose money would it be bought? Be sure of this: not with the government's money but with our money; namely, with the money which we, the people, pay in taxes. When I hear of this building in Ottawa which has cost millions upon millions, I wonder whether these people in government remember just whose money it is that they are throwing away.

On the other hand, when the people demand subsidies, or huge expenditures, I wonder whether they realize that the government has no money and is frequently close to bankruptcy. Parliament must vote supply or thousands of people will not be paid. Parliament has no money save that which it gets through taxes of one kind or another. So, if the people will insist upon social services, and upon more and more public works, these things must be paid for out of OUR money. To say that it comes from the treasury is like saying that water comes out of a reservoir. Surely, it does come out of a reservoir, but the reservoir will run dry unless there are streams constantly pouring water into the reservoir.

There are many things we would like to have. If they are luxuries, or certain projects to time, are proposed in our city (and not always by Kelowna residents) it is necessary to remember whose money is going to be spent on them. I venture to use a present bone of contention for my argument.

If an indoor swimming pool is constructed, who is going to pay for it? Your sports writer? Oh no. Or, if he does, his contribution will be negligible and the benefit derived from the project cannot possibly be for the advantage of the people of Kelowna; whereas a nursing home, or chronic hospital, will be paid for not only by me (and my contribution likewise will be very small) but the advantage may well accrue to any family in this town at almost any time. We all grow old. Only a tiny percentage of the population of the district is interested in diving and swimming championships. My point is clear. I hope, OUR money should be used for the benefit of all our citizens. It should provide what is a potential need for all our people. Not even the most ardent swimmers and divers could possibly claim for an indoor swimming pool (or justify its colossal cost and upkeep) what I claim for a hospital for the chronically ill.

By all means, if the sporting element can prove that they can put up and support an indoor swimming pool at their own private expense, then all power to them but they will not do it with my money if I can possibly prevent them, and by my money I mean OUR money, our tax money. People who want to spend money on extravagances which they cannot afford are in the same category as those wasters at Ottawa who have spent millions on careless abandon, because what they want to spend is OUR money (including theirs, inasmuch as they pay taxes) and not theirs exclusively.

OTTAWA REPORT

Trade Talks Open Monday

By PATRICK NICHOLSON
(Specially Written For The Daily Courier)

When the Commonwealth Economic Conference opens in Montreal next Monday, it will already have achieved fame on one score. It will be the most carefully prepared and preplanned meeting ever held between representatives of the governments of the sister nations forming the Commonwealth.

Months of intensive exploration, discussion and communication have gone into setting the stage, or more accurately devising the agenda, for this meeting. Here in Ottawa these preparations have been carried on at an exceptionally high level, with Trade Minister Gordon Churchill and Finance Minister Donald Fleming, summoning their departmental officials regularly every Wednesday evening, after Parliament has finished its work for the day, to meetings of the special Commonwealth Conference Committee.

As a result, there is justified confidence that talks will produce very successful steps towards boosting trade between members of the Commonwealth.

"The collective wisdom of the conference will produce something worthwhile and substantial," Hon. Gordon Churchill told me, more in a tone of genuine belief than of mere pious hope. In 1932, a Conservative Government in Ottawa invited representatives of Commonwealth countries to a trade conference here. That meeting produced the beneficial and still observed preferential system of tariffs.

"This year, the drive to increase trading relations within the Commonwealth will have a wider framework."

TIMES HAVE CHANGED
"There are today more means of facilitating trade than there used to be, and there is now a wider diversification of Commonwealth trading interests than there were in 1932," a senior official working on the conference plans told me.

Canada's main emphasis will continue to be a determined attempt to spread our trade over a wider and hence a safer base. At present we buy too much from the States, and we rely too heavily on the States as a market for our exports.

Americans will buy from us when it suits them. It will never, in the foreseeable future, suit them to buy such primary commodities as our wheat and our fish. They don't buy our cheese and our salmon. They are taking positive steps to exclude our oil and certain metals.

But there are other countries in the world who would buy our surplus production of these items tomorrow—if they had the dollars to pay for them.

In other words, if we were to buy some of our import requirements from some of these would-be buyers of our surplus, we would at once open a market for ourselves by spending our dollars with them.

This is presumably what Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has always meant by his objective of reducing our imports from the States, and placing those import orders elsewhere.

THE HEN OR THE EGG

The Liberals have attacked the Prime Minister for what they assert is a wrong-thinking policy of trade "diversion"; we should expand our trade, not divert it, they say. But how? Everyone would like to expand exports, but one must have money to buy. An essential prior step, if we wish to expand our exports to the soft currency countries, which means the Commonwealth and most of the western world and the free world, is to buy from those countries first. And can we afford to expand our imports from other countries? No, we must change our buying habits, or "divert" our purchases.

One obvious example being talked about here is our heavy importation of citrus fruits. We buy these from California and Florida. And what do California and Florida buy from us? Wheat? Apples? Fish? Cheese?

Racial Tension In Britain Being Kept Out Of Schools

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP).—The racial tension in Britain has kept out of the schools. Education authorities insist it will stay out.

Said the headmaster of an elementary school in London's biggest Negro area:

"I don't know how many colored children we have and I don't want to know."

"So far we've had no color problem. We might get one if we start thinking of children in terms of black and white."

ELDERS FIGHT

The night before their elders had fought with bottles outside a pub.

"If you write about this school," he asked, "don't name it."

"These children read the papers and know all about race troubles. But we don't want to make them over-conscious of problems which have not affected the school, or give them the impression this school is different from any other."

"Like many schools in Britain, this one segregates the sexes. Boys and girls troop in through different gates, play in different yards. Even in different classrooms. But there is no segregation according to color."

SCHOOLS' ATTITUDES

The expensive public schools are selective in admitting students. But even the roughest have non-white boys, usually from highly ranking families overseas who can pay up to £600 ($1,680) a year.

"Harrow," where Sir Winston Churchill idled his school years, can usually muster a score of dian, African or Arab boys. The universities and medical schools always have a high proportion of students from the colonies. Nobody knows exactly how many because they are never counted in black and white. But it's a fair bet that half the African and Asian political leaders fighting British colonial rule were educated in Britain—on scholarships paid for by Britain. Non-white students do complain about a color bar operated by land-Negro ladies in such London university rooming districts as Kensington and Earl's Court.

With West Indian immigrants arriving at the rate of 40,000 a year, most schools in London have a handful of Negro children and some have more. At the school this correspondent visited, the proportion looked to be about one in 10 of the teenagers. Among the tot of 5 and 6 year olds, one child in four was of a color bar operated by land-Negro.

Russian Ships Around Iceland

By EDDY GILMORE

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP).—The Russians are all around us," said the Icelandic. "Listen."

He switched his living room radio to the ship-to-shore band. "Vanva," said a heavy, Slavie voice from the loudspeaker. "Our position is—" he spoke a series of numbers in Russian.

"Received you," said another Russian voice, "and this is our position."

These were Russian voices from ships at sea. The coast guard says no Russian warship or submarine has been sighted in Icelandic waters recently.

The voices over the radio, it was explained, are probably from Soviet ships in the North Sea. But these sound mighty loud.

The Icelandic at the radio set was a pro-Westerner.

COMMUNIST MINISTERS
One of the ministers in the present coalition government, Ludvig Josselson, minister of fisheries, is vice-chairman of Iceland's well-known Communist party.

He comes from Neskupstadir, a Communist-controlled municipality on Iceland's east coast.

Another government minister is Hannibal Valdimarsson. He was a left-wing Social Democrat but was expelled from the Social Democratic party in 1956. Rather than join the Communist party, he joined with the Communists in the Communist-dominated Labor Alliance. He is minister of social affairs.

Elmar Olafsson, chairman of Iceland's Communist party, is Speaker of Parliament's lower chamber and one of the eight members of the Communist-dominated Labor Alliance.

Iceland's defence force consists of 3,000 American Air Force, army and navy officers and men.

NO NATIONAL ARMY
Technically it's a NATO defence force. With no navy, air force or army of its own, Iceland's contribution to NATO is the air base at nearby Keflavik.

The Communists want Iceland out of NATO and the Americans off this island.

Russian automobiles in Reykjavik are almost as common as American cars, and Russian tanks are frequent sights in Reykjavik's harbor. The gasoline for the automobiles and heating purposes in Reykjavik comes from these tankers. Iceland sends fish to Russia.

The Icelanders once bought gasoline from the United States, Britain and Holland but the NATO allies wanted payment in money, not fish.

The Soviet bloc supplied Iceland 33 per cent of its total imports in 1957.

SOCIETIES EXIST
Soviet-Icelandic friendship societies exist all over the island.

Il. K. Laxness, Iceland's Nobel prize-winning author, is president of the Soviet-Icelandic Society. The Russians maintain a large staff at their Reykjavik Embassy. Like Russian officials in most foreign countries, they are highly suspicious.

One Icelandic doctor told of two patients he has at the Soviet Embassy. "When the wife is sick," he said, "the husband always accompanies her to my office. I have come to interpret for my wife," says the husband. Then, when the husband comes for treatment, his wife accompanies him. "I have come to interpret for my husband," she says.

In speaking with Icelanders, most of the Soviet diplomats use English. The movies they furnish Iceland are also in English.

WATER ACTION FORMED THESE UNUSUAL SPECIMENS

These specimens of life-like animal and bird life were found on the Shuswap Lake in the Eagle Bay area by E. A. Robinson, 1331 St. Paul Street. Mr. Robinson has a large piece of property on the lakeshore, and says the specimens, similar to those shown above, are formed by the action of water. There is a large clay area along the shore, and as the lake level drops, the various formations are found on the clay bank. ABOVE, a member of the Courier staff, Alan Campbell poses with the specimens. The one in the centre resembles a duck, which Mr. Robinson later mounted on a base. It can be used as a paper weight. The one on the left looks like a human leg, and the exhibit on the right could be a snake or a spear. (Courier staff photo—prints available)

Jim Kuong Final Rites Saturday

Funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon for Jim Kuong (Quong), 67, well-known member of the Chinese community and longtime restaurant operator in Kelowna.

Final rites will be conducted at the Kelowna Funeral Directors' chapel, at 2 p.m., followed by the traditional tour through what is left of Chinatown and then committal in the Chinese section at the Kelowna cemetery.

Jim Kuong, who was born in Canton, China, and came to Kelowna 50 years ago as a youth, operated the City Park Cafe for nearly 30 years, in partnership with his cousin, Wan Kuong. The business originally was started by an uncle of the deceased, who retired in 1930, at which time Jim Kuong took over control.

ACTIVE LIFE
All through his life in Kelowna he was an active worker and organizer in the Chinese community and served as president of the local branch of the Chinese Nationalist Party several times. He was on the executive at the time of his death.

The late Mr. Kuong was a cook by trade and followed that trade right from the time he came to Kelowna from his native land.

He leaves his wife in China, also a daughter there. There are also two brothers, one in Toronto and the other on the Philippine Islands. Several cousins also are in the Kelowna area.

Mr. Kuong had been in indifferent health for the past several months, becoming seriously ill a few days ago, at which time he was taken to hospital. His death occurred Thursday morning at 10:15.

New Zealander Makes First Hand Inspection Of Packing Methods

Canada has a special place in the heart and life of Don Sinclair, a New Zealand orchardist and farmer, who spent four days in the Kelowna area as part of a world-wide scholarship tour of inspection of fruit growing areas and packing methods.

"It's always a treat to come back to Canada," said the tall, tanned New Zealander who was an air force instructor in Vulcan, Alta., for two years during the last war, as part of the Empire air training scheme.

It was while at Vulcan that he met and married an Edmonton girl, who was a member of the women's division of the RCAF. One of their two children was born in Canada, he explained.

"So you can see why I feel Canada is my other home," Mr. Sinclair grinned.

TRAVELLED EUROPE

Already travelling for five months, during which he toured the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Holland, and Germany, Mr. Sinclair is anxious to get home. The stop-off at Kelowna was the first one since leaving the UK late last week. He left this morning for Vancouver for a few days before leaving by air for New Zealand.

While here, he managed to see some of the orchards and packing houses, but his principal interest was in the fruit by-products. Consequently he spent most of his time at the processing plants, gathering information and data with the hope that he might be able to have industry officials at New Zealand adopt similar plans to use up surpluses, particularly in apples.

"New Zealand is not fruit juice conscious as you are here," Mr. Sinclair asserted. "There is apple juice available, by small local producers, but its quality is far inferior to what I have found here."

LIKED CIDER, TOO

While admitting, in his personal opinion, that it would take some time to make New Zealanders apple juice conscious, he felt it could be done with products similar to those produced by B.C. Fruit Processors Ltd.

He also was favorably impressed with BCFP's sparkling apple cider.

Mr. Sinclair has nearly 100 acres near Nelson, New Zealand, a city of about 24,000 population. Twenty-three acres are in orchard (apples and pears) while the balance is ranch land, for the raising of sheep.

One of his latest inspections before leaving Kelowna was at the Kelowna Growers Exchange plant Ethel St. where bulk handling was introduced this year.

It sort of made him feel more at home than ever, because the bulk-handling system has been in vogue in New Zealand for years.

"That's something," commenting on the bulk-handling, "that New Zealand had first," he said, with a slight expansion of the chest.

Civil Defence Chief Scores Public Apathy

(By Courier Staff Reporter)

PENTICTON — There is too much public apathy over the role of Civil Defence in Canada.

This point was stressed by most of those present at a Civil Defence meeting here last night where public officials and representatives of various organizations from all part of the Okanagan held a forum. Lt. General D. Graham, CBE, DOS, ED, CD, was principal speaker.

Also present at the meeting were Brig. A. C. McCarter, Civil Defence co-ordinator for B.C., and Col. J. H. Horn, chief co-ordinator for the Okanagan valley.

He added that he thought the reserve force, or militia was "the biggest waste of the taxpayers money in Canada."

Major Victor Wilson, of the B.C. Dragons, replied that this is the thinking of the average Canadian and that people couldn't imagine what it would be like "if something fell."

Major Wilson contended that more people should be made aware of civil defence by advertising. He said that television, or the "idiot's lantern," as he referred to it, could be used to great advantage.

Finally, Jack Bews, civil defence communications officer for this district, reported that the Okanagan Valley was lacking in the proper equipment and that the civil officials of Vernon, Penticton, and Kelowna should co-operate and purchase the needed equipment on the basis of a three-way split.

PUBLIC APATHY
"The problem of public apathy is a great one," said General Graham. "People do not consider that there is any urgency. Something will be done by the government in the not too distant future," he promised.

Some of the suggestions made and opinions expressed by the Kelowna council men were:

Alderman Treadgold: "I am amazed at the responsibility of the civil governments in the civil defence plans. He further contended 'if civil defence is necessary, we must face responsibility. The job of the Okanagan Valley would be absolutely titanic.'"

General Graham stated that no matter what occurs, the role of civil governments will be paramount.

General Graham added that salaries in the Civil Defence organization are low, and that one way for Civil Defence to assume more importance was for the government to spend more money.

Alderman Knox was of the opinion that the Civil Defence course that he had taken was of no benefit to anyone.

"After I completed the course I was not called upon to lecture or instruct, and my interest declined, he admitted.

"This criticism of civic government is unfair," he said, "at least until civil defence puts forth some effort itself."

Mayor Parkinson said that he was a great skeptic of the civil defence organization in civic governments, and that the responsibility should lie with younger members of the community, who have trained in civil defence work.

He added that he thought the reserve force, or militia was "the biggest waste of the taxpayers money in Canada."

Glenmore School Enrolment Shows Major Increase

GLENMORE—There has been an increase in the enrolment of pupils at the Glenmore Elementary School which has necessitated the addition of another classroom and another teacher to the staff.

Last year there were 137 pupils in the school and at the beginning of the school term this year 160 were registered.

At present, the Grade 1 children are using the activity room as a classroom. However, work on an addition to the school is to commence next week and it should be ready for use by the end of October.

With the additional room, the heating system in the school has to be expanded and work began this week.

Two new teachers are on the staff this year, Miss S. Hewlett, of Kelowna, and Miss M. Petter, of Victoria.

Teaching Grade 1 is Miss J. Myrtle who has 37 pupils, 24 of whom are boys. Miss Myrtle has been on the staff of the Glenmore school for the past four years.

Miss S. Hewlett teaches Grade 2 in which there are 24 pupils and Miss M. Petter Grade 3 with 28 pupils.

Teaching Grade 4 pupils and part of the Grade 5 class is Miss D. Dulik. She has 23 Grade 4 pupils and 16 Grade 5 pupils in her class. This is Miss Dulik's second year at the Glenmore school.

D. Braund, the school principal, is teaching a mixed class of Grades 5 and 6. There are 13 pupils in Grade 5 and 18 in Grade 6.

NEWLY-WEDS ADMIRE FURNISHINGS

Courier photographer Kent Stevenson had to use special lighting effect to get the mirror reflection of Kelowna newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Grant

Hours Of Hard Work Go Into Making Home Fair A Success

By ALBERT DENEGRIE

Hours of toil and preparation preceded the annual Kelowna Home Show and Fall Fair which opened last night for a three-day stand at the Kelowna and District Memorial Arena.

The arena Thursday morning and afternoon was a hive of activity as firms brought in heavy equipment and furniture — also automobiles — and decorated their respective booths and stalls for the most appealing presentation to the public.

One firm—Barr and Anderson—which was unable to complete its presentation in time for last night's opening, is busy today adding more to the display.

During a preview tour Thursday—several hours before the show opened—these were some of the "workers" seen in action, making ready for the first night.

HEATING DOMINATED
Tom Fahlan and Bill Zaker, putting the T. J. Fahlan Ltd. exhibit of gas furnaces and hot water heaters together. As it turned out, heating equipment was the predominant feature of the show.

Jack C. p. Harold Wightman and Ross Aightman were busily engaged in setting up another heating display—that of Wightman Plumbing and Heating Ltd.

Warm of another variety was emphasized at another booth, where four local chinchilla ranchers had a display. Combining for the showing of the "empress of the fur world" were Rex Mar, Palk and Wallpaper Co., and the fur world's Wood-End Chinchilla Ranch; R. H. Brown of Chin-wagger Ranch; A. C. Withers, Altern Chinchilla Ranch, and R. McHarg of El Rancho Chinchillas.

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Brown were the only two of the four who had displayed chinchillas at the home fair before this year.

HUSBAND AND WIFE
At the west end of the arena, Loane's Hardware and Hoover combined talents, with the latter predominating. Hoover supervisor R. Thomas of Kelowna and sales representative Cliff Slusar were seen setting up the many Hoover vacuum cleaners and other items for display.

A heavy and impressive exhibit was in the making at the Mc and Mc stall where Bob McCaugherty and branch manager Alex Ferrier were toiling away with the laying-down of linoleum and putting up a suitable backdrop.

A husband and wife combination—Mr. and Mrs. Dick Steele—did the groundwork for the display for Arctic Refrigeration and Gas Heating.

The Barr and Anderson stall showed no activity at the time of the preview, but to the west of it, four men from M and S Plumbing and Heating were moving bathroom installations and heating equipment around for the best vantage.

Co-proprietors Jack Miller and Pyle Somerville were assisted by Ken Shaw and Buster McKinley.

Some other booths, including those of Flor-Lay Co., Kelowna Paint and Wallpaper Co., and governments have offered to help the sons finance the proposed return to their ancestral homeland.

There was no indication whether the meeting is set for a later date. Federal and B.C. governments have offered to help the sons finance the proposed return to their ancestral homeland.

If Pacific Mud Fertile, Lions Have Great Hopes

By GEORGE INGLIS
(Courier Sports Editor)

The Pacific coast "Comedy of Errors" continues. If even half the mud being slung within the city limits of the city on the "other side of the mountains" is topsoil, it might serve as a beginning of a "back to the land" movement for some of the erstwhile cosmopolites currently engaged in a king-sized hassle over a pint-sized project—what to do about the B.C. Lions.

We term the project "pint-sized" advisedly, since it has never been our policy to overrate incidents in sports, and the current, early demise of the coast's embryonic football club and the ensuing battle of the larynxes is merely a functional disorder of a professional athletic organization, in our estimation.

Even though our city cousins may take violent exception to our remarks, regarding the fate of their football club as second in stature only to the world war news in importance, we cannot get any more steamed up about it than that.

However, there is always the remote possibility that one of the luminaries of the coast sports world might receive a copy of this humble organ wrapped around an Okanagan cheese sent there by a humble critic, and we feel it our duty to expound briefly on the critical condition of the football club that plays for money in Empire Stadium.

Aside from the fact they're not grown up yet, that is.

"MESMERISM DOETH MAKE DREAMERS OF US ALL," besides being a rather clever little product of our imagination, might well serve as a slogan for Vancouver Lions' fans and club members, up to and including the executive, but excluding the lads who bear the colors into battle.

Had the dwellers by the Pacific been sold more gradually on the game that is rapidly striding to the forefront on the Canadian sporting scene, they might have been more prepared for the long years of drought that can conceivably be the lot of a professional club in any type of sport (ask just about any ball club in the American League except the Yankees).

Had the club structure been composed with an eye to experience in sport, rather than affluence in the directors, there might have been a more realistic attitude among the directors toward the inevitable difficulties of bringing a professional sport of top flight calibre into a strange city without years of build-up.

Had the attendant interests in the city been more versed in the game, or even more inclined to learn about the various facets peculiar to the gridiron sport, not found in other pursuits, they might have been able to come up with a more mature attitude toward the conduct of the game.

At present, the picture resembles nothing more than a group of wealthy young dols in Eton collars and velvet suits squatting in the mud to play marbles, because they don't realize the game can also be played from a standing position. And a lot of it can be attributed to early mesmerism.

WHEN ANNIS STUKUS PUT THE HARD SELL on Vancouver, he was flushed by his successes in Edmonton, where he sold the game and it caught on like a prairie fire. Being an enthusiastic promoter of the game he loves, he certainly wasn't going to emphasize the problems that might beset the city by the Pacific in their attempts to crash into the national football spotlight.

Certainly, his enthusiasm was infectious, and spread over the city like a net, entangling some mighty affluent leviathans of commerce in its weave. By the time he launched the Vancouver Lions (later known as "B.C. Lions") down the ways of the western conference, the joint was jumping like a Saturday night clam-bake.

What he failed to point out was the fact that 30 or 40 guys with big shoulders don't necessarily constitute a football team, especially a winning one. He had failed to sink home the realization that for every football player born, there were two clubs to take him. He hadn't emphasized the fact that every successful football club has to have a plush-lined pipeline to some NFL club or else a talent training system of some magnitude.

After all, he was a super salesman, not a teacher.

THE FIVE-YEAR PLAN OF THE LEOS, since they christened beautiful Empire Stadium with a champagne bottle full of enthusiasm and a football club whose jerseys were just as colorful as any of the team, has been riddled with amateur actions in the name of professionalism.

When "Big Stuke" got the pants beat off him for a season, as was to be expected, the adrenalin of enthusiasm turned to the sour juices of discontent. At this moment what the city needed was a bunch of pros to point out the pleasanter aspects of their inauspicious launching into the game's higher echelons.

Right then and there what the Leos needed was a "take charge guy" to seize upon the directors, fans, and publicity mediums alike, pointing out the urgent need for accepting the outcome of the first year's effort in the manner of true pros, not sandlot kids. Had this guy been around, the Leos' story might have been different.

But he wasn't around, and each ensuing year has presented the club, the fans, and the directors with more problems, some of which received some rather frenzied answers. The precious years of establishment were wasted in a number of hectic and often infatigable efforts to pin blame, work miracles and circumvent problems, rather than face them.

Now, they face a much greater problem than they did in 1954, since they will have to grow up, get sense, eradicate memories, and start a building program.

Barring miracles, they'll be great in 1958.

Eddie Sawyer is a great man for psychology as a retired manager with the Philadelphia Phillies.

A few days ago he took a swipe at Chicago Fernandez, the chipper, proud shortstop peddled to the Phils by the Dodgers last year. "He hasn't shown me a thing," said Sawyer, the pennant skipper of 1950 who returned as Phils' manager July 22.

Sunday, the day after Sawyer's dig, the Phils lost a doubleheader to Cincinnati, but Chico was 5-for-8 and drove in a run. Tuesday he doubled home the Phils' first run against Los Angeles. And Wednesday, Fernandez was hitless, against the Dodgers.

TIED GAME

Thursday night he tied the game with a two-run single, then stole second and counted the winning run on Dave Philley's pinch single for a three-run eighth inning that beat the Dodgers 4-3.

It was the only game scheduled in the National League.

Fernandez, who never will let the Dodgers forget they didn't want him, singled for the Phils' first hit in the third inning off Johnny Podres. His eighth-inning hit knocked Podres out of the game and hung a 13-13 record on the southpaw, who has won but one of 10 decisions on the road.

Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox is tied for the American League batting lead but it has been a long haul.

There was that fuss over his ankle in the spring. He missed opening day because of food poisoning. He didn't get over 300 until July 1. Then he had another spit spat with a boozing crowd.

A few weeks back, when the Red Sox beat Cleveland 8-6 with 15 hits, Williams had none.

Then a virus kept him out of action from Aug. 24 to last Tuesday, when the big guy was fifth in the batting race at .315.

Williams has gone 5 for 11 since, tying teammate Pete Runnels for the lead at .320 Thursday with a 2-for-4 day although the Red Sox lost 4-1 at Chicago.

Williams, shooting for his sixth title (a far cry from his winning .388 of last season), drove in the lone Boston run Thursday as the White Sox swept the three-game set and took a 3½-game lead over the Red Sox for second place.

New York Yankees, who could clinch the pennant Sunday, were idle. They open a two-game set at Chicago tonight with a 10½-game lead and their magic number at five.

Washington took a season Delock (12-7), series from Detroit for the first. Roy Sievers and Albie Pearson time since 1954 by beating the each drove in two runs for the Tigers 7-6, and Kansas City Senators, John Romanosky (2-4) belted Baltimore 7-1 in the only win it in relief.

TOP MAN ON THE TOTAL POLE

A total of more than $130,000,000 was spent for advertising last year by national product advertisers . . . and a third of it was spent in daily newspapers. $43,527,193 to be exact.

That's more money in newspapers than ever before more than in any other medium . . . more than in TV, radio, outdoor and transit combined. And 1956 wasn't unusual.

Every year, newspapers are on top of the total pole. The reason is simple. For results, newspapers can't be topped. Use the daily newspaper as your basic advertising medium. Most advertisers do. The final for 1956:

Daily Newspapers	$43,527,193
Television	$21,445,000
Radio	13,690,000
Outdoor	3,172,000
Transit	3,644,000

P.S. Canadian retailers invest 82% of their advertising budgets in Newspapers . . . for results sake.

Pretty Peggy Misses "Amber" Because She Looks Too Young

By SYLVIA HACK Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP).—Peggy Cummins, the pretty Irish actress who missed the title role in Forever Amber because she looked too young, regards herself as a reliable "electrical maintenance hand."

A delicate-looking blonde-eyed blonde, Peggy can show a strong arm when it comes to fixing fuses and doing a bit of re-wiring.

"Since my husband isn't good at fixing things and labor costs so much, I've learned to do quite a bit myself," Peggy says.

CAR-MINDED

The actress, who is in her late 20s but could pass for a teenager, is also proud to claim she knows a "fair bit" about car mechanics.

In private life the wife of a British garden-seed businessman and mother of a four-year-old son, David, Peggy estimates that she is working on her 21st film. In an interview at the J. Arthur Rank Pinewood studios, where she is filming The Captain's Table, Peggy talked about her career.

A year ago she was offered a leading role in a Broadway show but turned it down because it meant separation from her husband and son. "I don't think families should split up," she says. "Not even for three months."

LIGHT ROLE

Her "light and fluffy" role in The Captain's Table, a comedy about high jinks on a luxury liner, is Peggy's first movie appearance in two years.

Peggy has been connected with the theatre and films since she was seven. She loves playing any part. "I enjoy both mixed-up and gay roles."

Delighted to discuss the clothes she wears in her new film, the five-foot-two actress is happy to find she can try out all the new styles including trapeze, harem and empire lines.

"I never really thought I could get away with the trapeze style," she says.

"But it has surprised me to learn that if adapted to one's height, it is possible to wear those extreme lines—if not too extreme."

BEGAN YOUNG

Trained as a ballet dancer, Peggy got her first acting break when she was 7 at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. She made her London stage debut at 13, and after that came film parts and a Warner Brothers contract. In 1948 she signed a contract with 20th Century Fox for the Amber role, but her youthful and delicate looks counted against her for the role.

She lives with her family in a Georgian-style house near London's Hyde Park and travels down to the studios daily. In the evenings she likes to take things quietly and maybe have friends in to dinner.

Sometimes, if she's home early enough, she'll read a story to David. But at other times, "I'm so tired I climb into the cot with him and have a rest."

Well Trained Nursery-School Teachers Are Very Important

By EDNA USHER Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP).—Nursing school teachers should be better educated and have more teacher-training than instructors for any other children's age group, says Lindsay Weld, president of the Toronto Nursery Education Association.

Miss Weld, 33, is also an instructor in child development at the Institute of Child Study, Toronto.

"Scientific tests have shown that the younger a child is, the more effect a person will have on him," she said. "A nursery school teacher is the first important adult in a child's life after his immediate family, and it is important that her influence upon a child should be good."

SPECIAL TRAINING

"The best way to ensure that the right type of person works in nursery schools is to insist on a three-year general arts degree course, plus specialist training in dealing with children."

The Nursery Education Association is hoping to establish minimum standards of education for nursery school teachers, involving a diploma of professional competence.

The association is open to teachers, parents, psychologists, and anybody interested in the lower age-groups of children.

A well-educated, well-qualified teacher can not only handle children more expertly, but can assist parents, too, says Miss Weld. "A properly-qualified person is more likely to be mature and stable—the type of person a child needs in its early years. Through a specialized study a teacher also knows how children behave at different age levels and she won't read problems into what is normal child development."

NOT FOR EVERYONE

While she believes that nursery schools should be available for every child regardless of the income of its parents, she says nursery education is not suitable for all infants.

"Children who have plenty of playmates in the neighborhood and plenty of toys at home don't necessarily need nursery schools."

"But the only child in a family, and isolated youngsters, can work, 'Sakulika'."

Parents Should Foster Esteem For Teacher In Own Attitude

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Most teachers are wonderful. Many more could become so with our help. To this end we parents could do far more than we ever have supposed.

If only for selfish reasons, we should aim to build up our child's teacher in his heart and mind and cause him to esteem and love her. The more he does, the better he will learn from books and from working and playing with other children: the less he does, the less he will learn.

GRACIOUS WAYS

We build up this teacher by our graciousness and appreciative ways and words toward her when we meet her at school, on the street, at church, at the market—anywhere. We do it as we tell her of the good things we have heard about her in relation to our child and other people's children. We do it as we celebrate with her her successes.

We build up our child's teacher in the heart and mind of our child when our remarks and attitudes at home toward her are gracious and respectful; when we don't speak of her in our child's presence except to approve or praise her; when we keep silent about what we suppose are her weaknesses and speak enthusiastically of her strengths.

SPEAK WELL OF HER

Also, when we hear our child and his playmates speak disparagingly of this teacher, we should say, "We just don't say such things about her." Right then we might be able to say honestly something positively good about her.

Furthermore, when our child of the second, fifth or tenth grade complains in the family circle about his teacher, we shall

Babies Baptised At Presbyterian Church Sunday

Baptismal services were conducted at St. David's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, September 7, by Rev. K. J. Rooney of the Vernon Presbyterian Church.

Junior-Sized Foot Fashions For Fall

Little feet will be doing some fancy stepping this fall in back-to-school shoes that are slimmer, softer and more colorful.

New and varied leather colors pace this trend. Most favored shoe for boys and girls will be the slimmer and thinner oxford with three or four-eyelot tie, seen in lightweight "smooth" leathers or finely grained surfaces and often combined with brushed leathers. Because of the lighter, slimmer look, lightweight leather soles that are flexible and less extended become more important than ever on all school shoes.

The tapered toe extends to styles for little boys and girls. The natural shape of the foot is followed to the point where the toe ends, then extra length is added for the slimmer taper. This gives the desired new look without crimping growing feet.

For dress, the little miss can choose from dozens of pretty pumps with swivel straps, T-straps, or plain styles accented with all sorts of bows and jewel ornaments. Shiny patent leathers are important for dress in bright reds as well as black, alone with dresy black suede and butter-soft smooth leathers in rainbow colors.

CHURCH ROUNDS

Rev. D. M. Perley, of St. Paul's United Church reports that the Sunday school of that church plans to take part in the parade of witnesses on Sunday at the City Park. He also disclosed the Mission band will begin practice next Monday. The band will be under the direction of Mrs. W. Wintonyk and Mrs. J. Laurie.

Mr. Archie Glen, lay commissioner for the Kamloops-Okanagan Valley is leaving on Sunday for Ottawa, where he will attend the 18th annual meeting of the general council of the United Church of Canada.

Rev. R. S. Leitch has already left for the east and will represent the clergy for this district.

The Rev. D. C. Cooper, formerly of Prince George, will be the new minister for the Seventh-Day Adventist movement in the Kelowna district.

Mr. Cooper arrived on Thursday to replace Pastor Hempel, who has left for California.

Mr. Hempel spent a great deal of time as a missionary in Burma and had some harrowing experiences there during the war. Mr. Cooper is originally from the state of California, and spent some time in Alberta shortly after the war. He will preach at the United Church Will Urge Peaceful Nuclear Program

OTTAWA (CP)—The 18th general council of the United Church of Canada, opening here September 17 will be asked to urge that Canada call on other nations to join in her present policy of research and development of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes.

This will be one of the recommendations to be submitted by the committee on the church and international affairs.

Another recommendation asks that Canada press for an international agreement halting all nuclear tests, subject to international control.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker will address the 10-day meeting on September 19.

Rev. M. C. MacDonald, secretary of the board of home missions, who directs the national United program of church extension, has been nominated for the moderatorship of the church.

He will point out that if Canada's population in 1975 will be increased by 10,000,000, it will mean another 2,000,000 United Church people.

One of the recommendations will be a move to make available a minimum of $400,000 to the board of home missions, to carry on frontier extension work, to continue assistance in building manses in church extension areas and to care for extension needs in centres where no capital funds are available.

Is a church deaconess a minister or a laywoman or neither? This is only one of a large number of questions to be submitted by various commissions at the conference.

The report, submitted to commission chairman, Rev. C. E. J.

SERVICE

But, more important, he became the chronicler of the gold rush days, winning the title of bard of the Yukon with a series of books that included Bar-Room Ballads, Sons of a Sourdough and his best-known novel The Trail of '98. 38

Service was born in Preston, England, on Jan. 16, 1874, one of 10 children of Scottish parents. He gave up a bank job to sail to Canada "for I was not satisfied with a humdrum existence." 38

He was 20 when he set out for Canada. After working on a farm at Duncan, B.C., he moved to the United States and returned to Duncan in 1901, taking a job in Victoria three years later. After a few months he was transferred to Kamloops, B.C. "for I was not satisfied with a humdrum existence." 38

He made his way to the Klondike gold fields and began contributing verse to the Dawson Star. In response to the editor's request, he wrote a poem with local atmosphere, starting after dinner one evening and finishing before 5 a.m. It was The Shooting of Dan McGrew. 38

He wasn't satisfied with it, however, and put the manuscript in a desk drawer. A month later he wrote The Cremation of Sam McGee. 38

FAME CAME QUICKLY
Some months after that he decided to send the verses to Toronto where they were published and became an almost immediate sensation. 38

It was from a bank ledger that Service got the name Sam McGee, a businessman who died in Beiseker, Alta., in 1940. 38

To the end, while spending his winters in the Mediterranean sun and his summers on the cool British coast, Service wrote in the style that made him world famous. 38

Only six months ago his latest work - The Sourdough's Lament - was read to a banquet of Yukon pioneers in Vancouver. 38

The lament starts off: "When I was a Klondike high-roller I tilted my poke with the best And though the climate might be cold..." 38

I'd plenty of hair on my chest. Now while I've no trace of rheumatism, And maybe I shouldn't complain, I'm worried because I just ain't what I was. 38

And I wish I was 80 again." The most tumultuous times of Service's life began after his departure from the Yukon. 38

Canada's 24th Parliament Will Be Remembered For Economic Acts

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The first session of Canada's 24th Parliament, dominated by Progressive Conservatives after a smashing electoral victory March 31, grappled mainly with an economic recession.

It may take a few months more before it can be determined whether the government's measures to give the economy a shot in the arm have been successful. The anti-recession steps, many of them taken early in the session that started May 12, included $350,000,000 of federal funds for housing loans, more unemployment benefits, record peacetime government spending and deficit budgetary financing of $648,000,000.

TO AID CONSUMERS

The government said these moves were designed to pour purchasing power into the hands of consumers.

Finance Minister Fleming's budget June 17 contained small tax cuts here and there, totalling $28,000,000 in a full year but only $8,000,000 for the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1.

Apart from the record peacetime deficit, the budget estimated revenues at $4,652,000,000 and spending at $5,179,343,555. The expenditure estimates have since been boosted to $5,296,000,000—approaching the all-time high of $5,322,000,000 in the 1943-44 war year—and more are to come.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government began the session with 208 supporters, losing one through the death of veteran A. Clair Casselman in Grenville-Dundas, Ont.

The Liberals had 49, but lost one through the resignation of former cabinet minister Jean LeSage of Montmagny-L'Islet, Que., to become Quebec provincial Liberal leader. CCF strength remained at eight.

By-elections to fill the two vacancies in the 265-seat Commons will be held Sept. 29.

BIG LIBERAL MAJORITY

In the Senate, the Liberal opposition has a majority comparable to that of the Conservatives in the Commons, but it gave the assurance at the start of the session that it would not block any legislation it considered in the national interest. It did not throw out any.

However, in a vote that criss-crossed party affiliations, the Senate held up a major piece of government legislation by amending a new estates tax act in a way that the administration found unacceptable.

The Senate, at the request of the Commons, backed down and did not insist on the amendment. It was the first time in 11 years that there had been a difference of this nature between the two Houses of Parliament.

Commons Opposition Leader Pearson and former immigration minister J. W. Pickersgill carried most of the burden of criticizing government legislation and policies, especially in the late stages of the session.

Mr. Pearson, a foreign affairs expert, displayed an unexpected grasp of domestic issues and was an active questioner during the often-tedious job of detailed examination of legislation.

The strong man in Parliamentary debates for the government was Mr. Diefenbaker. Several times he entered debates when it appeared one of his ministers was being roughed up by the opposition.

LOUDSPEAKER FUSS

When it was disclosed that the prime minister had a loudspeaker in his office connected to the chamber's sound system the Liberals protested that such a move showed disregard for the rights of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it was nothing of the kind. The loudspeaker permitted him to follow the debates and still attend to his other duties in his office.

Late in the session, he introduced a proposed bill of rights giving "recognition and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms." It was something he had long sought while in opposition.

Final action on the bill, likely to be contentious, was postponed until the next session, expected to convene in January.

Parliament saw many famous visitors during the session, including four who addressed the assembled Senate and Commons: Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain, President Eisenhower of the United States, President Heuss of West Germany and Prime Minister Nkrumah of Ghana.

Federal-provincial relations remained pretty much in the background, except for legislation authorizing the federal government to start sharing July 1 the cost of a national hospital insurance plan.

The four western provinces and Newfoundland put their plans in operation on that date. Ontario, started 10 years ago under the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are due to come in Jan. 1.

COMMITTEES BUSY

It was a busy session for committees. Ten sets of departmental estimates were studied by committees, thus speeding up the work of the House when they came up for approval there.

The committee that received most of the attention and head-lines—mainly as a result of some-stormy sittings—was the public accounts committee. It conducted an inquiry into the cost of the government printing bureau in neighboring, Hull, Que. — $16,000,000, compared with a $6,000,000 estimate when construction operation on that date. Ontario, started 10 years ago under the former Liberal administration.

Foreign trade cropped up in many debates. The Liberals attacked what they called a "protectionist" tariff policy in Mr. Fleming's budget, a charge the minister repeatedly denied.

A small boost in the duty on British wool cloth imports drew the opposition's fire, mainly on the ground it would not materially help the Canadian industry and was ill-timed, coming just before the Commonwealth trade and economic conference in Montreal.

The government also tightened its anti-dumping legislation by authorizing customs collectors to set an arbitrary valuation price for customs duty purposes.

CHANGE CBC SETUP

One of the major pieces of legislation provided for establishment of a new board, separate from the CBC, to regulate broadcasting. The new Board of Broadcast Governors will have three full-time and 12 part-time members. The CBC itself will continue to operate a national broadcasting system, but has lost its regulatory powers over private stations.

The government repealed a special 20-per-cent tax on gross advertising revenue of special Canadian editions of foreign magazines. The tax was imposed two years ago by the Liberals.

The new estates tax act will replace the Succession Duties Act. Apart from providing higher basic exemptions, the new act's main principle is that it takes estates, instead of individual bequests as now.

On the labor front, Parliament added six weeks, up to June 28, to the period during which seasonal unemployment benefits may be paid.

The government also took legislative action to end a seamen's strike that had tied up the Canadian Pacific Steamship service on the west coast for months. The bill provided for the appointment of an administrator to run the ferry service to Vancouver Island and ordered, in effect, the striking seafarers' International Union and the company to resume negotiations.

Gold mines will get bigger federal subsidies as a result of a bill boosting by some $2,500,000, to $12,000,000, the annual outlay in emergency assistance to marginal operations.

Agriculture received federal assistance on several fronts. The Canadian Farm Loan Board's lending capacity was raised from $80,000,000 to $120,000,000; qualifying requirements for drought assistance payments were widened; and some technical changes were made to the cash advances system on farm-stored prairie grain.

The government also received Parliamentary approval for a federal contribution of some $74,000,000 plus a $12,000,000 loan towards construction of the $182,000,000 South Saskatchewan River dam and irrigation project, near Outlook, Sask.

International affairs received intermittent attention as crisis after crisis arose, mainly in the Middle East.

Rubbers, raincoat and head covering should be part of every child's equipment in wet weather.
